

Call for AWSS Mentors

As a professional in soil science, you can help encourage girls and young women to become future soil science professionals by being a mentor in the Association for Woman Soil Scientists (AWSS). This program is designed to provide young females with a great resource when help or guidance is requested, for selecting a college or graduate school, help with the admission process, support during their college/graduate school education, advice in career choices in soil science discipline, and other professional development advice. Your involvement can make a big difference in supporting a future female soil science (or closely related discipline) professional that will diversify our community. The mentoring program is e-mail based and substantial time involvement is not expected.

You are encouraged to volunteer and your help will be deeply appreciated! Please fill the application form below and send to AWSS Mentoring & Mentoring Award Committee Chair, Suduan Gao via e-mail Suduan.Gao@ars.usda.gov.

AWSS Mentor Volunteer Application Form

Name and title
Affiliation
Contact Information: Mailing address Phone no Email address
Education (degrees received including date, institution and major)
Expertise or research interests for being a mentor
Website link to your professional home page	